

Jefferson Conservation District Assists Farmers with Manure Management Plans

Jefferson County Conservation District offers multiple avenues of assistance for local farmers to create and maintain individualized manure management plans. Recently the district held two workshops to educate the farmers about the state required plans. The district also offers free soil testing kits to assist with manure management plans.

Failure to follow the manure management plans is a violation of state. Therefore, the assistance that the conservation district offers is invaluable.

Grant funding is made possible by the Clean Water Fund and the Chesapeake Bay Implementation Grant, which allows PA DEP to provide all 66 conservation districts with funding to provide local Manure Management Manual workshops.

For more information visit www.jeffersonconservation.com.

